Kane Calls for Removal of Anti-Freed TV ad; Says we need a “higher standard”

Scranton-- Kathleen Kane, the Democratic nominee for Pennsylvania Attorney General, today released a statement on a new third party television ad airing in parts of the state that criticizes her opponent, Dave Freed.

"Since allies of Dave Freed began running ads against me that were called the 'most blatantly false ads of the political season,' I have said that we need to hold candidates and campaigns to a higher standard.

I became aware today that an outside group has begun running an ad against Dave Freed in some parts of the state. From what I have learned about it, I am concerned that this ad is misleading. This is not an ad from my campaign -- neither I nor any of my staff or advisors saw it in advance or knew of its content -- but that does not mean that I do not have a responsibility to speak out on it.

So I am asking the people who created this ad to also strive for this higher standard by taking the ad down and replacing it with something that is not misleading. I am also calling on television stations not to air it."
